Group 32

Group 32 is one of the groups of Immortals that were sent out to explore more of the planet, and to establish a new colony in what is now known as the Caribbean area.

They left the Ark Ship with about 285 people about 17000 BCE and started with the southernmost tip of the landmass known as South America. They worked their way north, creating small villages in the mountains when they found a particularly plentiful place to stay. They stayed away from the indigenous people because they were too primitive.

It wasn't until they reached the land bridge between North and South America, known as Central America, that they encountered humans. 2000 BCE had Group 32 settling on the largest island in the Caribbean, today known as Cuba. They took advantage of the volcanoes to generate heat and power, building their village by sculpting into the soft volcanic rock.
